

EMPLOYMENT OFFER LETTER

Fictional sample document for software testing only

Sample data: This offer letter is fictional and is not an employment contract or legal advice.

September 18, 2026

Dear Priya Nair,

Brightpath Analytics Private Limited ("Company") is pleased to offer you the position of Product Analyst, reporting to the Head of Product. Your anticipated start date is October 12, 2026, subject to completion of the conditions below.

1. Compensation

Your annual gross compensation will be INR 1,200,000, paid monthly and subject to required deductions. The Company may change the structure or timing of compensation at its sole discretion. Any bonus is entirely discretionary, is not guaranteed, and may be cancelled even after you have met the stated performance targets.

2. Probation and Termination

Your first six months are a probationary period. During probation, either party may end the relationship immediately without notice or payment. After probation, you must provide 90 days' notice. The Company may terminate your employment immediately for any reason, including a reason it determines to be confidential, and may recover three months of salary if you do not complete the notice period.

3. Intellectual Property

All inventions, ideas, designs, writing, code, and other work product created by you during employment belong exclusively to the Company, whether created during working hours or not and whether or not related to the Company's business. You assign all rights worldwide and agree to sign further documents at your own cost.

4. Confidentiality and Restrictions

You must keep all Company information confidential indefinitely. For 24 months after leaving, you may not work for, advise, or invest in any business that competes with the Company anywhere in the world. You may not contact any Company employee or customer for any reason after departure.

5. Monitoring and Policies

The Company may monitor email, messages, devices, browser history, location, and other activity on any device used for work. Company policies may be changed at any time without notice, and continued employment means acceptance of those changes.

6. Acceptance

This offer is conditional on background verification and execution of the Company's standard agreements. The Company may withdraw this offer at any time before your start date without liability. This letter and all related disputes are governed by the laws selected by the Company.

Please sign below to confirm that you have read and accepted these terms.

Priya Nair
Date: -----